ALL-STARS BEAT VIRGINIA ACES

Collegians and Benedicts Meet on Monday For 4 1/2 Innings But Argument Still Open

On Sunday, Sept. 10, the Bethel All Stars journeyed to Rumford where they took over the Virginia Aces 16-10 in a very loosely played game. Bethel's big drive was made in the sixth inning when they scored eight runs. The hitting of Browne and Goddard; Dick Young's spectacular catch of Coolidge's fly in the 9th inning and Bartlett's un-

WEST PARIS

Miss Ethel Flavin returned to her teaching in Fawcett, N. J., last Monday.

Miss Ella Curtis and Mrs. Edwin R. Berry were in Lewiston Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Bowker of Portland were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Curtis and Miss Ella Curtis from Friday until Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Emma Berry spent the week end with her daughter, Mrs. Ernest B. Jackson and family, at Norway.

Mrs. Albert Jackson returned to Boston last Monday with her sister, Mrs. Fred Rollins, where she spent the week.

Work at the corn shop has been very rushing during the past week, the help beginning most of the time at 6 o'clock A. M., and working with short recesses until 9 and 10 o'clock at night.

Mrs. Lorenzo Cole has returned to her home and is making satisfactory improvement from her operation for goiter at a Roxbury, Mass., hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Irvin L. Bowker of Portland have been spending some time here of late, as painting, papering, electric wiring and other repairs have been done in Mrs. Bowker's house on Main Street.

Mrs. Clara Dunham has been the recent guest of her niece, Mrs. Columbus Kimball, at Bryant Pond.

Miss Betty Hollis, who suffered a bad injury to her left hand and wrist in an auto accident at Auburn last week, is making good recovery at the Central Maine General Hospital, Lewiston.

Services were resumed at the Universalist church Sunday morning. On Sunday, Sept. 3d, a special service was conducted by the pastor, Rev. Elinor B. Forbes, when Constance Elinor, the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis J. Mann, was christened, as Mr. and Mrs. Mann were leaving Monday for their home at Old Town. Geraldine Mann sang the christening hymn, with Gertrude Mann accompanist.

Mr. and Mrs. Albion L. Abbott and son Ralph attended a reunion of the Ellingwood family, Sunday, Sept. 3rd, at Mechanic Falls.

Mr. and Mrs. George Kimball and family have moved from a rent in Charles Curtis' house to Falmouth, where Mr. Kimball has employment on the railroad as section hand.

Mrs. James Wight has been entertaining her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Russell Bethell, and son Cameron of Fryeburg.

Dr. Arthur Kent went to Boston Friday on business. Wendall Ring accompanied him.

Mrs. Ethel Brock has returned to her school in Scottsdale, Georgia, travelling by auto bus from Trap Corner, Paris, to Atlanta, Georgia, about 1500 miles.

Mrs. Lora Herrick had the misfortune to fall down stairs last week, receiving injuries which compel her to keep quiet for a while.

Mrs. Martha Cash and granddaughter, Marion Fields, have returned to their rooms at Walter Bryant's.

Ruth McKeen and Eloise Scribner are taking a home correspondence business course.

Miss Muriel Scribner is teaching the King School in Paris.

Rev. H. F. Aldrich, a former pastor, preached in the United Parish church, Aug. 27, and gave a powerful sermon.

Ellsworth D. Curtis, Jr., went to Kent's Hill Monday where he will attend school during the year.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank P. Knight, Jr., went to Manchester, Mass., where Mr. Knight has work three days each week, spending the other days in connection with the Maine Mining and Milling Co., here at West Paris.

Charlotte, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert E. Hill, is improving sufficiently to be able to sit in a chair for a few hours daily.

About 285 one-pound loaves of bread are made from one barrel of flour. Millers require 4.6 bushels of wheat to make one barrel of flour.

THIS WEEK'S TRAGEDY

During the second week a ghastly tragedy will occur.

Two hundred or more lives will be destroyed. Property valued at about $8,000,000 will be reduced to ashes. Because of it, businesses will close, men will lose their jobs, taxes will increase.

You won't hear much about it because it won't happen all at once. It will be divided among a thousand communities, a thousand different kinds of property. The destruction of a great factory or a portable garage will all contribute to it.

The world remembers the great fires—the Iriquois theatre, the Cleveland hospital, the little school at Collinsville. What the world does not realize is that these fires are no worse than those that take place every week in this so-called civilized world, and which, by cumulative action, even exceed these ghastly disasters in loss of life and property. Many years ago, without the occurrence of a fire as horrible as that in the Iriquois theatre—but each year witnesses the destruction of ten thousand lives and half a billion dollars in property values.

If we look on fire in the mass, we will come close to gaining some idea of the unnecessary menace it is. Billions of dollars have been spent in seeking to prevent it—and while these efforts have born good fruit, public indifference has prevented the success that should be achieved. It is time for a "Fire Prevention Year."

"Proud and glad to do our part"

WITH President Roosevelt's acceptance of the NRA Automobile Code, Chevrolet, the world's largest builder of motor cars, officially begins operations in accordance with the administration's recovery program.

Although the official code was signed only a few days ago, it will be of interest to Chevrolet's many friends to learn that the Chevrolet Motor Company started to carry out the spirit of today's recovery program over three years ago!

At that time, we put into operation a "share-the-work" plan, whereby our workmen cooperated in spreading the work to give more men jobs. By means of this plan, as well as by regulating hours of work per week to meet retail demand, and by building up parts stocks in lean seasons, it was possible to carry 33,000 men on our payroll through the depression. For eleven months of each year since 1929, we have kept our employment within 10 per cent of this average. We are justly proud of that record. We are also proud to say that Chevrolet workmen did not, at any time during the depression, become a burden on public welfare departments.

On August 1st of this year, Chevrolet announced a blanket wage increase as well as the adoption of a 7½-hour, 5-day week and the employment of 12,000 additional men. This wage increase was the second in the last 4 months, Chevrolet having been among the first to put a blanket wage increase into effect.

We feel that the President's recovery program deserves the whole-hearted support of every citizen and manufacturer in America. It is a bold, swift, courageous plan to start the ball rolling toward economic recovery. Its sincerity is unquestioned. Its objectives are admirable. And the direct, forceful steps the President and his associates are taking to make it a success, should stir the pride and admiration of every American.

We are proud and glad to do our part. And we are deeply grateful to the American people for the patronage that has enabled us to anticipate the present recovery program and to play our part today. After all, the immense number of men employed by Chevrolet is a direct result of the continued preference America has shown for Chevrolet.

TO MERCHANTS AND THEIR CUSTOMERS

Two or three weeks ago there appeared in this column an article relative to the formation of the Merchants' Association of Bethel.
This movement, which we understand was promoted primarily for the object of securing shorter opening hours for the local stores, seemed likely to be a beginning for an era of cooperation which might work for the benefit of both the merchants and their customers.
The article referred to mentioned the benefits of friendly cooperation and the opportunity which their local newspaper afforded for telling their customers of their offerings in an economical way.

The fact that some of the interested parties could not see their way clear to continue with the agreement regarding hours of business, and the fact that few of them use the Citizen's columns for the purpose of educating their public to further patronize local stores, does not in the least indicate that consistent cooperation and reasonable advertising endeavor among our local business houses would not be a successful venture and mutually profitable for the merchant and his patron.

Here is a point for our readers to remember: Advertising does not increase the cost to the consumer.
If your merchant cares to invest from one to three per cent of his gross receipts in advertising in the Citizen, he can tell you of bargains and unusual values which will move his goods at a profit and save money for his customers. Bethel stores offer goods at prices that compare favorably with those in the larger centers, and many times here you will find goods at much lower prices than in places famed for good values. But as long as your merchant waits for you to come and see what he has to offer, he may suffer from the persistent publicity of the city stores and the small order concerns.

Tell your merchant that you read
the advertisements in the Citizen.

That you are looking for his name in the advertising columns. If your wish can be met in his store, buy and it is thrifty to buy in advance of your present needs—but read
the advertisements in the Citizen.

ELMER B. BARTLETT

Elmer Bertrand Bartlett, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Asa O.
Bartlett, passed away Friday evening, Sept. 8, at the C. M. G. Hospital, Lewiston; where he was taken Wednesday evening suffering from lock-jaw, the result of a cut on his knee, received by falling over a rock while playing with a boy companion.

He was born at Norway, Nov.
10, 1920, the son of Asa O. and Lottie (Dunn) Bartlett, but has lived the greater part of his life in Bethel, coming here with his parents when but two years of age.

He was a member of the Methuen Sunday School, always willing to help in any of the school activities where help was needed. He was a cheerful and industrious lad.
His sunny smile and sweet disposition won the love of his schoolmates and companions and the affection and respect of the older folk. Much sympathy is felt throughout the community for the sorrowing parents.

Funeral services were held Monday at 2 p. m. from his late home, conducted by Rev. R. C. Daboll.
The home was filled with relatives, friends and schoolmates, come to pay their last respects to one they loved. The casket and all around the room was banked with the beautiful flowers which he loved so much, among them being two bouquets from the garden which he helped to make last spring. Burial was in the South Paris-Norway cemetery.

He is survived by his parents, three brothers, Wilson, Traflet and Floyd Bartlett; two aunts, Mrs.
Ransom Norman of Santiago, Cal., and Mrs. Geneva Lane of Upton, five uncles, B. D. Dunn of South
Portland, J. W. Bartlett of Mason,
F. W. Bartlett of Upton, Percy Bartlett of Norway, B. M. Bartlett of Hanover, besides several cousins.

Passing out of the shadow
Into a purer light
Stopping behind the curtain
Getting a clearer sight;
Fanning out of the shadow
Into eternal day—
Why do we call it dying?
This sweet going away?

ARTHUR L. FARRAR

Arthur Leslie Farrar of Grafton who was ill for some time and was taken to the C. M. G. hospital, on Tuesday by his nephew, L. E.
Davis, after suffering several days with hemorrhages, died Wednesday afternoon, Sept. 6, during an operation.

He was born Nov. 21, 1864 at Woodstock, the son of Rufus and Angella Whitman Farrar, but had lived the greater part of his life at Grafton. He chose farming and lumbering as his occupations but during the hunting season acted as guide for hunting parties. Mr. Farrar was never married. He is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Frances Wood and Mrs. Myron Lowe of Randolph, N. H.; two brothers, Ernest Farrar of Randolph, N. H., and Carroll Farrar of Kennebunk, besides nieces and nephews.

Funeral services were held at the Davis home, Saturday afternoon, Rev. R. S. Irons officiating. Interment was in the Grafton cemetery.

It is expected that a special session of legislature will be called to devise means to finance the $2,000-600 public works program.

WALTER IRVING BECKLER

After a long period of ill health,
W. Irving Beckler of Albany passed away Thursday, Sept. 7, at the Central Maine General Hospital,
Lewiston.

Mr. Beckler was born in Albany,
October 12, 1862, the son of George W. and Julia (Palmer) Beckler.
He married Dora Cummings Get-chell of Albany who passed away last year. Mr. Beckler was the last of a family of three boys and two girls. He was educated in the Albany schools and Bridgton Academy.

After his marriage he built the home near Albany Town House where he has since lived. He has been a beloved and useful citizen of his native town, serving as superintendent of schools, a member of the school committee, and as tax collector. While health permitted he carried on the farm where he lived.

He was a member of Round
Mountain Grange and the North Waterford Lodge, I. O. O. F. Members of these orders attended the funeral, the Grange performing their service and members to the Odd Fellows acting as bearers.
Funeral services were held at the Albany Church attended by Rev.
W. I. Bull. Burial was in the Albany cemetery.

Construction of an airport at Camp Keyes, Augusta, is contemplated by Governor Brann. The project has been planned for several years and will probably require the expenditure of $10,000 besides the purchase of additional land and construction of a hangar.

RALPH R. PERKINS

After some three years of failing health, Ralph R. Perkins of South Paris died Monday at his home.
Mr. Perkins was born in Bucksport 43 years ago, the son of Frank and Georgia Perkins. He came to South Paris 18 years ago, and followed the barber's trade as long as his health permitted.

He is survived by his wife, who was Miss Agnes Hutchins of Bethel, a son William, and three brothers.

Funeral services were held Wednesday at Spiller's funeral parlor,
Rev. Rensel H. Colby officiating.
Interment was at Bethel.

Bring a Girl

By JANE OSBORN

"But I told you when you phoned this morning, that I didn't come," Ned Fairfax was saying his telephone with one hand and signing letters with the other, reading them, and talking to sister all at one time. "I've a day's work at the office still before me and it's nearly five. One of the men is away in the output department and I've got to go over and take care of his mail. I'll dictate until nine."

"But you've got to come, simply to," his sister Nellie informed him. "It will absolutely ruin that if you don't. You are needed to make up the fourth table, it's all there is about it."

Nellie hung up the receiver and realized that he would have to do his sister's bidding. As a matter of fact he had finished with his work. He would go over to the output department where he had been told a stenographer would wait for him, work an hour, and then go out for a sandwich and a cup of coffee and plod ahead until nine. He was not entirely sorry that he was going. Nellie had told him she had arranged to have an active girl there for him.

When his telephone rang again, Ned, Ned, came his sister's. "You've got to bring a girl," Ned said. "You've got to bring a girl."

"You've got to bring a girl," Ned said. "You've got to bring a girl."

"You've got to bring a girl," Ned said. "You've got to bring a girl."

you are," Ned asked her drawing her aside, "how come you're working? Molly thinks you have all sorts of money, and she really believed the opera story."

"Of course that was a joke more or less," said the girl. "But I'm not quite the poor little working girl you might suppose, and I could have gone to the opera if I had wanted. You see I wanted to go to college, but my father had objections. So I got a job on the city to earn enough money to go anyway. I'd have to have some sort of a career."

"Unless you married?" suggested Ned.

"May I consider that a proposal?" asked Laura loud enough for Molly and Nellie to overhear.

"Please don't joke about it too much," Ned said so that only Laura heard. "I might have courage some day to ask you."

And later when Ned and Laura announced their engagement it was generally understood that their truth had been pledged there in Nellie's little apartment that night.

DAIRYING IS A DEPENDABLE BUSINESS

By Dr. John M. Evvard

Not long since, my colleague Professor Weaver, head of the Department of Dairying in one of our leading Mid-west Agricultural Colleges, and the writer had a long talk on the "Dependability of Dairying"; out of that conference grew the following paragraphs which express our mutual ideas.

The "dependability of dairying" attracts many of the most sound and more substantial farmers to the enterprise. They perceive that some other activity will prove far more profitable in a certain year or short series of years but may, on occasions, prove a complete failure, so they abide by their choice of dairying regardless of the extra hours required and consistent daily devotion to its duties. Dairying, generally, and relatively speaking, is not given to "sudden fluctuations in returns." Those who continuously vacillate "in" and "out" of the business are seldom, if ever, successful; this axiom not only holds true for nearly all agricultural enterprises, but also applies with especial emphasis to dairy farming.

While dependability, as an advantage for dairying, has attracted some, it is doubtful if the vast majority of farmers have been enticed into dairying by this tempting lure. Human psychology is such that dependability and steadiness in an enterprise is not nearly so fascinating to most men as is a brilliant promise even though transitory. Men like to picture a bright experience as a typical one. Dairying does not offer any particularly scintillating promises, but it offers consistent hope of reward—and it provides the opportunity to gain weekly cash.

The town banker's interest in dairying hinges to quite an extent on the cash dependability of dairying; his patrons usually incur no alarmingly large obligations, and they meet the moderate demands for the family food, clothing, etc. that confront them.

The dairyman receives his milk or cream checks in a quite steady amount and at intervals—weekly, twice a month, or monthly; this is an effective advantage of dairying. The dairyman can pay his grocer, hardware man, feed man or doctor; he does not have "to be carried on the books" for prolonged periods. It is obviously understandable as to why city merchants and professional men endorse and boost dairying often with much ado.

HERE AND THERE IN MAINE

Although protected by law in Maine, a bald eagle, said to measure seven feet between wing tips is hunted near Bingham where turkeys, ducks, chickens and lambs have been stolen from farm yards and pastures. For several years the eagle and his mate have summered in that vicinity, but this is the first season that they have given trouble.

For the first eight months of 1933 there were 7452 fewer passenger cars registered in Maine than for that period last year.

The Public Utilities Commission has rendered a decision in favor of the Androscoggin and Kennebec Railway Company against six people who have been driving cars for hire without permits in competition with the railroad. The automobiles were running between Sabattus and Lewiston, and Lisbon and Lewiston.

George Ward, six year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Ward of Southwest Harbor, has been missing since Tuesday night. One hundred and fifty C. C. C. men hunted for him Wednesday.

GOOD FITTING SHOES MEAN HEALTH INSURANCE

A shoe which is to be worn by a person standing or walking the greater part of the time should be so built that a ruler laid beside the inner line of the sole would touch most of the edge from tip of the toe to the arch and again touch the side of the heel, says Helen C. Spaulding, clothing specialist for the Extension Service at the University of Maine. Continuing she says:

"A shoe for such wear should have a low heel, preferably about three-fourths of an inch. The heel should be but little smaller where it touches the ground than at the top. Laced shoes give the best support to hard working feet.

"Foot fit, good workmanship, and good leather are what the shoe buyer looks for. To get all three calls for real money. A reasonable amount of durability can be bought for a moderate price. Fit is the most important factor in the purchase if the buyer has any regard for comfort.

"No one but the person who wears the shoe can tell whether it fits properly and it follows that there is a good deal of risk in buying any shoe that cannot be tried on. Both shoes should be fitted and the prospective buyer should stand in and walk on them to make sure that they are large enough when the weight of the body is on the feet. There should be no pressure across the great toe joint and the ends of the toes should not touch the toe of the shoe. The shoe should fit closely under the instep and around the heel.

"Very inexpensive shoes are not made in narrow widths so that the person with a very slender foot and a thin pocketbook is out of luck."

NEW ENGLAND MILK PRODUCTION BELOW AVERAGE

Average daily milk production per cow for all cows as reported by many New England dairymen on September 1 declined 1.3% during August and is 3.8% below the average of a year ago and 3.0% below the five year average 1927-1931. The decline of 1.3% in average production per cow from August 1 to September 1 this year compares with the usual decline of 7.0% during this period. This difference is undoubtedly due to the efforts of dairymen to increase fall milk production and improved pasture conditions.

As compared with average milk production on August 1, decreases in Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont and Rhode Island were only partially offset by increases in Massachusetts and Connecticut. The average production per cow for New England as a whole on September 1 was 14.42 pounds compared with 14.61 pounds on August 1, 1933; 14.99 pounds on Sept. 1, 1932; and 14.87 pounds the five year average for September 1. As compared with a year ago all of the New England States except Massachusetts show decreases in production per cow. The proportion of dry cows to all cows in New England increased 8.6% during August, and on September 1 was 2.4% above the level reported a year ago and slightly above the five year average. As compared with last year all the New England States except Maine and New Hampshire show decreases in the percentage of dry cows on September 1.

The August price of 47 fluid milk, 10th zone basis, as reported by the Statistician of the New England Milk Producers' Association was $2.00 per hundred pounds, an increase of thirty-five cents per hundred pounds over the July 1933 price. This compares with $1.67 per hundred pounds for August 1932 and $3.13 per hundred pounds the August five year average. Surplus milk during August 1933 averaged $1.23 per hundred pounds, seven cents more than reported for July 1933, and compared with $1.00 per hundred pounds for August 1932 and $1.66 per hundred pounds the five year average for August. On the Boston market 92 score butter averaged 21.2 cents per pound during the first ten days of September 1933 compared with 22.2 cents for the corresponding period in August 1933, 21.0 cents for September 1932, and 4.0 cents per pound the September five year average.

PHILOSOPHY FOR CROAKERS

Joseph Morris

Some folks git a heap o' pleasure
Out o' lookin' glum;
Board their cares like it was treasure—

Fear they won't have some.
Wear black border on their spirit;
Hang their hopes with crepe;
Future's gloomy and they fear it,
Sure there's no escape.

Now there ain't no use of whinin',
Weighin' joy with lead;
There is silver in the linin',
Somewhere on ahead.

Can't enjoy the sun today—
It may rain tomorrow;
When a pain won't come their way,
Future pain they borrow.
If there's good news to be heard,
Ears are stuffed with cotton;
Evils dire are oft inferred;
Good is all forgotten.

When upon a peel I stand,
Slippin' like a koeer,
Luck, I trust, will shake my hand,
Just around the corner.

Keep a nearecrow in the yard,
Fiercer old bulldog near 'em;
Chase off joy that's tryin' hard
To come in an' cheer 'em.
Wear their blinders big and strong,
Dodge each happy sight;
Like to keep their faces long;
Think the day is night.

Now I've had my share of trouble;
Back been bent with ill;
Big load makes the joy seem double
When I mount a hill.

Got the toothache in their soul;
Corns upon their feelin's;
Got their share but want the whole,
Say it's crooked dealin's.
Nature's steeped in indigo;
Got their joy when crossed;
Swear it's only weeds that grow;
Flowers always lost.

Now it's best to sing a song
'Stead o' sit and mourn;
Rose you'll find grows right along Bigger than the thorn.

Beat the frogs the way they croak;
See the goggles blue—Universe is cracked or broke,
'Bout to split in two.
Think the world is full of sin,
Soon go up the spout;
Badness always movin' in,
Goodness movin' out.

But I've found folks good and kind,
'Cause I thought they would be;
Most men try, at least I find,
To be what they should be.

IMPROVED SPUDS SOUGHT
FOR MAINE PREMIER BRAND

By deciding to pass all potatoes over a two-inch screen for their premier brand, the Maine Potato Growers' Inc. have taken definite steps to insure uniformity in the product to be offered the 1933 trade according to Dan W. Haines, Fort Fairfield, president who made the announcement following a recent meeting of the directors.

This action was taken, Mr. Haines stated, because they have confidence that consumers will take and pay for a better potato than a U. S. No. 1 standard grade.

"Toplaster" the brand name for their premier stock has only been on the market about one year. Demand for this quality stock, Haines says, was quite satisfactory in view of the short introduction to the trade.

Potato men, it is said, look up on this move as a distinct forward step for the whole potato industry in Maine. It is also pointed out that this move for better quality comes at a time when prices are rising which indicates the growers desire to improve his offering to the trade even if he could sell his potatoes without the highest standard.

The opportunity will exist for grower members to ship U. S. No. 1 potatoes in sacks furnished by the Association.

SOUTH WOODSTOCK

Sunday, Sept. 10—A pleasant day with a chilly tang in the atmosphere forecasting a general lowering of temperature.

Mrs. Eva Titus and daughter Muriel of South Paris were visiting her father, A. M. Andrews, and her brother, Harlan Andrews, and family of this place last Friday.

Mrs. Jessie Andrews was visiting in South Paris and Norway during last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Green and Little Baby were callers at Davis homestead Sunday, also O. P. Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Leland Austin and little Bessie Edith, all from Bryant Pond.

There were many visitors at the Union Cemetery Sunday. The Corsons from Bridgton were at the Starbird lot containing the grave of Merile Starbird Corson. Mrs. Josephine Whitman Cummings and Mrs. Lula Whitman Billings of Bryant Pond visited the graves of their parents Henry Whitman and Elmirah Fuller Whitman. Many beautiful flowers were placed on the family lot and on other graves of the Whitman relatives and of the Fuller relatives.

George W. Davis was in Farmington Saturday, where he went to take his son Guyson, who will continue his normal school work.

Lester Felt, Merl Dean and Harry Page returned from Prout's Neck recently where they have been engaged in summer hotel employment. The boys all report a most pleasant summer's work, reasonable wages, heat of food, and many nice tips as additional remuneration.

Mrs. Charles Smith and little granddaughter Doris, of Camp Shady Nook, Perkins Valley, are visiting friends at East Milton.

Miss Bertha Lowe of Greenwood is making her home with the family of Mr. and Mrs. Gayden Davis and attending Union School here.

Union school commenced Sept. 5 under the instruction of Miss Mary Hendrickson with Mrs. Olive Pinegre Davis as assistant. There are a large number of pupils in attendance, several beginners in first year's work.

Miss Helva Holkkinen as a sophomore is attending Woodstock High. Beulah Littlehale is a Junior at Buckfield High. Myron Littlehale is at Atlantic Union College. Alta Hendrickson is a sophomore at West Paris High. All are graduates of Union School of this place.

The many friends of Ray Coffin are most glad to learn that he is O. K. after submitting to an operation for appendicitis at the U. M. G. Hospital, Lewiston, and has returned to his home here at Alvah Hendrickson's.

Miss Doris Coffin, who spends much of her vacation time here at her sister's, Mrs. Evelyn Barrett's, has again taken up her course at Woodstock High, being a sophomore.

George Davis of Davis homestead is enjoying a week's vacation at home at the present time, but his days of rest are like many other resting days; fix this, fix that, lend a hand, dig potatoes, pull beans, bring in wood, gather the vegetables; 'til at last the burdens being more than he could endure he is, for the day, on a strike, or until conditions are more congenial.

About eleven o'clock Monday night many of the neighbors were aroused by the vigorous telephone ring calling West Paris central. A fire was burning at the Walter Littlehale home. The fire had been burning brilliantly but within an hour disappeared. The spectacular midnight blaze came from the efforts of Mr. Littlehale, who had built a fire around his vegetable garden to protect it from frost and having to telephone had not let his neighbors know of his intentions, thus creating the midnight alarm.

WEST BETHEL

Mrs. Clarence Bennett entertained at two tables of bridge Friday afternoon. Dainty refreshments were served. Those present were Mrs. Clara Abbott, Mrs. Mary Abbott, Mrs. Bertha Mason, Mrs. Eva Burris, Mrs. Libbie Kneeland, Mrs. Olive Head, Mrs. Gladys Bean and the hostess, Mrs. Violet Bennett.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Mason returned to their home in Springfield, Mass., on Saturday after spending several days with his sister, Mrs. Douglass Cushing, and brother, Ed Mason, and family.

Mrs. Clara Abbott has finished work at Birchmont farm and is spending the week in Norway.

Miss Hope Wheeler is working at Birchmont Farm.

Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Abbott and family were in Berlin, N. H. on Sunday.

Mrs. Gordon Earl Lathrop spent the day Wednesday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas W. Burris, and family and made several calls in the village.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Perry and family were in Rumford on Saturday.

School commenced Monday, September 11, with the same teachers, Miss Hazel Grover and Miss Iva Bartlett.

Mrs. Ed Mason spent Saturday in Norway.

Delmont Harding was taken to the hospital Monday where he underwent an operation for appendicitis.

ELMS THREATENED

BY DISEASE
(Prepared by D. Folsom, Plant Pathologist, Maine Agricultural Experiment Station.)

Over two hundred elms have been found affected by the Dutch elm disease in New Jersey. This is a distinct threat to these noble and graceful trees which contribute so much to the beauty of Maine. If the disease is present in New England it should be stamped out immediately. The chief effects of the disease are sudden wilting of the leaves, bending of the tips of the twigs, brownish discoloration in the sapwood, and final death of the tree. If the disease is found, or even suspected, twigs and small branches from one-quarter to one inch in diameter, and from five to ten inches in length, should be sent to the Plant Pathology Department, Agricultural Experiment Station, Orono, Maine. Specimens should be taken from a part of the tree that has recently wilted or died, and sent securely wrapped in paraffined or waxed paper with a letter giving the location of the tree and name of sender.

Some Maine communities having over 100 Farm Bureau members are Skowhegan, 124; Caribou, 107; East Augusta, 101; and Bangor, 101.

Annual meetings of county farm bureaus in Maine are all packed in the space of one week. The Oxford County meeting is scheduled for October 20.

Oh Cynthia!

NORMA KNIGHT

had been good to her. So having called on Cynthia and drawn her own conclusions from certain signs and omens in that young lady's demeanor, she looked home, took down her telephone receiver and dialed Geoff.

"Can you come right over?" she asked.

"What's this?" he demanded. "A rendezvous and you not married six months yet? Fie, Flossie, fie!"

"That's all right," she answered imperturbably. "Give me fifteen minutes alone with you, and Cary can come and stay the rest of the afternoon."

Geoff came. Truth to tell he was glad to get away from his own thoughts. It had been a week since he had seen Cynthia; it seemed like a year. She wouldn't call him up; not Cynthia! He might stay away until he grew bald, acquired false teeth and a gold-headed cane; and she would preserve her stubborn aloofness. Was there ever in the history of the world a girl so exasperating, so endearing, so hateful, so lovable?

"It's about Cynthia," Flossie said directly when he had arrived at the apartment.

"What about her? She's not ill?" he inquired anxiously.

"No, she's all right. I've just come from there. When I say all right, I mean she's not sick, or anything. You know as well as I do, Geoff, that she's in love with you and won't admit it."

"I know no such thing," he half rose from his chair. "The last time I saw her she told me it made no difference to her if she didn't see me for a year."

"Yes, of course she would say that. The thing is we've got to think up a way. It's time something happened. Something that would wake her up, that would make her forget all the grudges she's holding against you—that would take her outside her self and send her running in your direction." Flossie told him blundering in her attempt to put into words her sense of drama.

"You've done all you can, I guess; and she couldn't do anything more. If she knew how it's time for me to guess I mean to circumstances—something outside of your two selves—to take a hand in bringing you together."

"You've been seeing too many movies, Flossie," was his disapproving comment.

"Shucks! The movies just press together in a couple of hours what it takes people a year or two to make happen," she said. "That's what we're going to have to do now: make something happen ourselves, as long as nothing outside is helping us. I don't suppose you feel as though you were coming down with pneumonia, or anything?" she asked hopefully.

"No, Flossie. Nor do I think my hotel will be razed by fire and Cynthia think I'm lost in the ruins."

"Just the same," she said without resentment, "that's the kind of thing you need right now. If something doesn't give Cynthia a shove toward you or you toward Cynthia you're never going to get together."

"Your artistic soul craves a climax to this uneventful romance," Geoff sighed. "Well, so does mine, for that matter. But no kindly fate offers to provide one."

"Yes, that's why I say you'll have to provide your own."

"It can be done," he inquired with interest.

"Oh, my, yes! I made a wedding happen to our first wife, easy as anything. And Cary—you'd be surprised if you knew what made him propose to me," she told him and then added with a little chuckle, "so would he?"

"Well, Flossie, suggest something! Go on—suggest something!"

She folded her small hands placidly. "No, you'll have to think of it yourself. It wouldn't be the right suggestion unless you made it happen yourself," she elucidated, "and you wouldn't be able to put it over right. Now, you think; isn't there anything about you that Cynthia doesn't know? Anything that would surprise her, or shock her, or yes, make her kind of mad—I mean angry at you? So angry she'd forget all the little things she's holding against you?"

"What is she holding against me?" he asked curiously.

Flossie hesitated. Sex pride was strong in her. She disliked giving away the secrets of the prison house to a man. Still, if Cynthia's ultimate happiness depended on it—

"Oh, your knowledge about it—" and Miss Nom's charge things she couldn't afford," she said.

"Well, but good heavens, Flossie! There was nothing in that that reflected on her?"

"She's a Cary," she said simply. "They stand together like all get out. And then you were always right in every single argument you two had. No woman could forgive that," she explained earnestly.

He rose and took the three steps forward and the three steps back the tiny apartment permitted. "I suppose the idea then is for me to be so wrong in the next argument that it will tip the scales heavily in her favor?"

She sighed. "Oh, no, no! You must be so terribly much more right than usual that she'll fly to pieces with rage, and forgive you. You just try it."

"Flossie, you're the world's wonder! But you've handed me as pretty a problem as I'll be likely to be called upon to solve in the whole of my professional career," was his despairing conclusion. "However, I'll see what I can do about it. There's one thing sure," he consoled himself, "things can't be any worse between us than they are now."

"Oh, yes, they could! Cynthia might start liking another man."

"Is there does she?" he began in alarm, then caught the significance of Flossie's grin and shook his fist at her.

"So that's the way you work it, is it? Did you try that on Cynthia—pretending of my devotion to other pretty ladies, I mean?"

"No," she said scornfully. "Cynthia's the real thing, and I'm fast in imitation."

He stooped and kissed her cheek gratefully. "You're a mighty kind little imitation anyway! I'm not so sure you aren't a diamond of the first water."

CAMP VAIL DELEGATES ANNOUNCED BY 4-H LEADER

Maine 4-H delegates to attend Camp Vail as guests of the Eastern States Exposition at Springfield, Mass., September 15-23, were announced recently by L. H. Shibles, state club leader.

The delegation consisting of four boys and four girls with chaperones will leave for the Exposition September 16.

Following are names of the delegates chosen for their excellence in 4-H work and their leadership activities within their local club: Girls—Virginia Hall, Topsham; Rosa Burns, Bridgton; Frances Merrill, Mason; Zana Hasty, Berwick Branch. Boys are: Roger Stinchfield, Wayne; Franklin Rich, Charleston; Dana Jones, Fairfield; and Lawrence Elms, Belfast.

"The more experienced farm women can show you so many things which you never knew before that you will be glad to have something with which to repay their kindness," said Mrs. Grace Howard, of Brownfield, a former city woman speaking over a Maine radio station recently. "Therefore," she continued, "if you have capabilities or training along any line, don't hide your light under a bushel. Neighborliness means sharing."

Mrs. Howard was speaking directly to farm women who have recently come from the city.

WHAT A RECORD!

The mutual savings banks of the United States have made a record for the first six months of this year that is more impressive than anything else that has come out of the financial world in the same space of time.

In the first place the number of their depositors has increased by 35,087, the total now reaching the huge army of 13,303,553. This is about a fifth of the adult population of the country. Their surplus account at the end of the first half year reached a new peak of $1,171,773,818, a gain of $29,680,799 for the period. This reserve fund provided 12.2 per cent surplus for every dollar of deposits, the highest ratio ever reached by mutual savings banks.

Surely these institutions are the very bed-rock of our national security. It would be difficult to conceive of life without them.

You miss me.

"Stay away a year if you like,"

she replied coldly. "It won't make a bit of difference to me."

It was distinctly unfair of him to take her at her word. Very likely though he was glad of an excuse to stay away.

Cynthia worked herself up into as finely morbid and resentful a state as a girl on the verge of fail ing in love ever indulged in. For that she was falling in love with Geoff she did not doubt. She missed him abominably when he did not come or telephone during the week following.

She would not admit that it was pride which fought against Geoff.

She had resented his coming to live with them in the first place; re sented it because it put her in a humiliating position in regard to his board. It had been necessary at the time to ask Geoff to pay his share of the household expenses.

She had put a bold front on it, but her cheeks burned yet as she re

Then came her illness and Geoff's discovery of the hazardous manner in which they lived. She hated his hated his tending the boy that hun

She hated his remembering how

Flossie told her a visit the first

Sunday of Geoff's self exile.

"How does it happen you're home

"I thought you went riding with Geoff on Sundays?"

"Geoff's—busy," was Cynthia's brief reply.

Flossie gazed at her thoughtfully.

"You treat Geoff awfully mean I think, Cynthia!"

"He'll survive it," said the other girl lightly.

Flossie said an unexpected thing.

"He'll do more than survive it. He'll take himself out of reach of it. I'll tell you about men, Cynthia; they'll stand a lot of walking on but not too much. You've been tramping all over Geoff ever since I've known you both. I expect he's getting a

"And supposing I don't?"

Flossie began to draw on her gloves. "Oh, you couldn't not want

11:00 Morning Worship. The Pastor's subject will be, "Is the Church a Growing or Dying Institution?"

To say that there are some things that seriously disturb our church leaders is putting it mildly. What do you think of the future of the church as you know it?

Has it out-grown its usefulness and must it be superseded by something else? Have you thought what that something else might be?

If, in your opinion the church is slipping, what should be your personal attitude toward the movement?

In this sermon the pastor will deal frankly with some of these questions.

On Monday night the Benedicts and Collegians tried to settle their arguments as to who had the better team but owing to the cold weather and darkness the game was called after only 4½ innings had been played. At that time the college boys were leading 6-4. As that was not long enough to be called a game the argument in regard to superiority, is still in doubt and will have to be settled at a very early date, possibly on Friday, the first day of the Fair.

BEAN—ORDWAY

Bethel friends of Willard F. Bean, Gould '24, will be interested to learn of his marriage to Miss Ora B. Ordway of Berlin which occurred Sept. 2.

Mr. Bean is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred N. Bean of Errol, N. H. Following his graduation here Mr. Bean entered the University of New Hampshire, graduating in 1929. He afterward studied at Fort Monroe, Va., and taught in the C. M. T. C. there. He is a lieutenant in the U. S. reserve army. He is now employed as civil engineer with the New Hampshire Highway Department and is stationed at Lancaster.

Mrs. Bean is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Ordway of Berlin. She is a graduate of Berlin High School '24 and Keene Normal School '27, and has since taught in the schools of Milan and Berlin. Mr. and Mrs. Bean will make their home at 6 Pleasant Street, Lancaster.

Water Rodent

The coypu is a large water-loving rodent, somewhat bigger than a muskrat, males weighing, according to Mr. Petrik, 25 pounds and females about 15 pounds. It has a heavy body, rather blunt head with strong incisor teeth and small ears, short legs, the hind feet partly webbed, and a round, naked, ratlike tail; the fur in character and color much resembles beaver. This interesting and valuable little animal inhabits all parts of South America.

Platinum Needed

The United States is the largest consumer of platinum in the world, importing annually more than $10,000,000 worth of the superprecious metal. Of this, about 60 per cent is used in the jewelry trade, and much of the remainder is used in the manufacture of scientific instruments.

FEED PULLETS HEAVILY ON GRAIN IN SEPTEMBER

By A. G. Phillips, Formerly Professor in Charge Poultry Husbandry, Purdue University

Conditions of the early fall bring changing problems to the poultryman who has been growing his pullets with the idea of securing early winter egg production.

All pullets should be taken into a well renovated laying house at a time not later than when the flock is laying 5 to 10 per cent. This will enable the feeder to so control the ration and feed consumption that he may obtain an uninterrupted fall lay.

Some preliminary feeding management is desirable before this time. If a pullet is to lay well, she must be of large frame for the breed and well fleshed, with a surplus of fat around the intestines. In order to obtain this, it may be necessary to increase the feeding of grain for a month before the birds are taken from the range to the laying pen.

Pullets normally make very rapid gains in weight just before they commence to lay, and this is not possible if there is a feeding plan which restricts their total intake. If the pullets are on free range and hopper fed in the summer time, I have found that the amount of food consumed can be increased by the additional hand feeding of grain once a day. A high intake of mash is not so necessary because the natural demand is for feeds which will help the birds to lay up a surplus of fat preliminary to egg production and cold weather.

The September feeding problem with normal pullets is therefore a matter of finding ways and means of helping them to consume a very large amount of grain. Additional trough hoppers along with hand feeding in the late afternoon will bring their rewards by helping the pullets to perform in a normal manner during October, November and December.

First Transfusion in 1663

The first human transfusion was performed in 1663 in Paris, says the Medical Journal and Record, by Jean Baptiste Denis. His youthful patient had been bled, according to the custom of the day, for an obscure fever and was in a state of exhaustion; nine ounces of the blood of a lamb was transfused to him, and almost at once improvement followed.

Lands Back to Forests

There are about 33,000,000 more acres of forest land in the United States now than there were in 1920, largely due to farm lands having reverted to forest.

Gilbert Tuell and daughter Elizabeth of Fairhaven, Mass., spent the week end with Mr. Tuell's mother, Mrs. F. B. Tuell, and family.
